Randy: Incredible!! With prior knowledge that OGC finds no role to play in this "communication enhancement" session still you label OGC as a participant without asking. Then, again knowing the OGC position, you list the OGC participants that will speak at this "conference" without asking. And now you prepare a handout for the OGC session to be "shared with OGC before printing"!! You best find another "filler" for that 1:30 spot on Wednesday.

If OGC had wanted a handout to be part of OGC's brief visit with this group, then OGC would have prepared such a handout and made it available.

How about a reply to the questions in my last e-mail. Anyone working on that? Those questions and your answers could also be used as a handout. Might get right to the heart of the matter!

Tom, I'm so sorry I brought it up. He must have no credibility at this point. Poor guy. If they don't show up, that is fine. We don't need this talk; we just thought it would be something to recognize. I sincerely hope you will not suffer any unfair repercussions.

No. I have told you more than once Tom, but it's obviously not getting through. If we had wanted handouts we would have prepared our own handouts. mjd

Importance: High

Mike: Sorry if we've again miscommunicated. In a previous msg you'd listed some points and then noted -
"Feel free to share these comments as you feel appropriate . mjd"

What I was going to do was combine these points with some of the info OGC had previously presented in courses like Mineral Decision Making so participants would have a convenient hand-out that summarized current OGC advice. I thought your note captured above indicated it was possible to provide the points as a handout. And.. I was not going to use it unless you were in total agreement!

If you remain adamant that no handout be provided then so be it. However, we are very interested in having the presentation made by you or one of your staff to definitively establish a common level of knowledge for the participants.

thnx, Tom
